Who Has To Change Shirts?

We've had many questions from coaches about what they should do in case they show up for a game and both teams are wearing the same color shirts. Just like everything, there are rules you can follow, and there is common sense you can use. The rule is simple - in the case of a color conflict between teams, the home team has to change shirts. (We like to think that this is due to the fact that soccer teams are more gracious hosts than teams in other sports.) The common sense part comes in when the home team discovers that half the team forgot to bring their other shirts - if this happens to you when you're visiting, do the right thing and offer to switch. See, it's easy!
